The library 100 years ago probably did not have air conditioning or, that much color. The library 100 years ago was like a fun zone. You could go and get a FREE book. Amazing. It was like a dream come true. Also dinosaurs probably roamed around the library reading. People probably 100 years ago did not have colorful books or posters. They came to the library to explore, learn, read, and discover. It also probably did not have computers. These are my thoughts about what the library was like 100 years ago.

Macey K. 3rd grade

I think the library 100 years ago had not much light and no airconditioning. They didn't probably have computers either. The library was plain and not colorfull. It probably wasn't so much fun because people probably couldn't talk. That's what I think the library 100 years ago was like.

Haley H
3rd grade

I think 100 years ago the library had no air conditioning and colors. Also the pages probably looked tan. Also dinosaurs were all over library. Also crocodiles bite the books.

Sophie S. 3rd grade

Think about it, what would it be like 100 years ago in the library. I think it would be very plain on the walls and also because there was probably no color. It would have been hot in the summer because there was no airconditioning back then. A long time ago there might not have as many books. What if people could speak different languages and everyone got confused of all the old mysterious languages. People back then still probably still had the fun movie scene when they read 100 years ago.

The Library 100 years ago

I think the library 100 years ago was probably pretty black, white, and gray. Everything would most likely use wood. A lot of libraries had paperbacks. They also had hard chairs. They put up black and white photographs. There was a lot of people, because there was no TV. It is not common for a bookworm habit today.

Happy Reading!

Jack Libraries in the 1920's

Libraries in the 1920's were probably very dusty, dark, small and well, a lot of shelves I think. Creaky wood floors surrounded the bottom of your feet. There was not much space to read. I think they took home books for a long time. Longer than how long we do today. There was no picture books or comic books. That's what libraries were like in the 1920's.

Evelyn T 3d grade

I think the books were stone in 100 years. I think the letters were written with mud. I think the library was small and bulded with stone like a 100 years ago.

I think what the library looked like we it was 100 years ago. I bet the shelves looked like wouden shelves. I bet thir was no coler in the books.

William p 3rd grade
I think the library 100 years ago did not have as many books as today.
I think it was darker back then. The covers were different.
They had more chairs because the floor was probably made of wood. There was probably less color.

Gabe 22 / ^{third} grade

I think that the library 100 years ago would only have simple colors like brown and black. The books would not have pictures. The library would be smaller and have less books. There wasn't computers in the library so you would have to write down the books you checked out. I don't think there would be sty fted animals or toys. I think that the library 100 years ago would be different than the one we have today.

Grace F. 3rd grade

I think the library 100 years ago was a simple plan. It would not have airconditioning. The books would not have color in them.

The library's books would be very dark and hard. The library would have holes in the ceiling. Rain would fall through it and get ruined. A library 100 years ago would not be as they are today. I like these books much more than the olden days. You would have to use a feather to right the books. That wouldn't be as many books as the library today.
